

Lineo is on the phone with her brother, Thabang, getting advice about telling her new boyfriend about her HIV status.

I am soo nervous

This is the first boy I have felt strongly about, the first one I want to tell that I am HIV positive.

There is no need to be nervous.

If he's a good guy, then it will go well.

But what if it doesn't? I really like this guy, I don't want to lose him.

If someone really loves you, they will accept you as you are.

I wish it was that easy.

What if he tells everyone else about my status? I don't know if I can deal with that humiliation.

Look at you you're healthy, you take your treatment. Trust your instincts on this and try not to be scared...

What do you think Lineo should say to her new boyfriend?

What do you think Lineo should say to her new boyfriend?